The Chelmsford Canoe Club

A talk by John Avery.

Canoeists are a familiar sight paddling canoes of various types on the Chelmer and Blackwater, and on the rivers Can and Chelmer in Chelmsford City Centre. At the Chelmsford end of the Navigation, a significant proportion of these craft have their base at the Chelmsford Canoe Club. The Club offers an affordable entry point into canoeing with activities from leisurely paddling to participation in serious competitive aquatic sports. The Canoe Club and the Chelmer Canal Trust have had common cause over many aspects of protecting the Chelmer and Blackwater, but it is many years since we last had a talk about the Canoe Club, what they do and their motivations.
Generously the Canoe Club have offered us the use of their own clubhouse to host this, and a number of our future events, so please note the change of venue!

The Canoe Club's clubhouse does not have vehicular access, but it is a short walk from a number of public car parks in the city centre.
